Academic Honesty

Any evidence of academic dishonesty (or plagiarism), including copying or dissemination of homework (from other students or from Online sources), copying or dissemination of programming assignments and cheating during exams/quizzes, will be treated with utmost seriousness. First offense will result in a zero on the assignment/project/exam in question. Those who are involved the second time will automatically receive an F grade for the course; this applies to ALL the parties involved (including the ones who help/show). Any assignment with an 85% or more on SafeAssign WILL NOT be graded and given a ZERO. It is your responsibility to protect your computer files (by setting appropriate access protection) and printouts. Students are responsible for knowing and following the Student Code of Conduct http://webs.wichita.edu/inaudit/ch8_05.htm and the Student Academic Honesty policy http://webs.wichita.edu/inaudit/ch2_17.htm. The University Academic Honesty Policy can also be found in the WSU Student Handbook.

What is allowed?

- Discussions with classmates/TA on possible approaches/directions for solving homework problems
- All homework should be completed (and written) individually

What is not allowed (and would be considered as dishonesty/plagiarism/cheating)?

- Copying (verbatim or by slightly modifying) homework, project code, project reports, or any other course-related submission from other students.
- Disseminating or sharing one's own homework solutions, project code or other course submission material with others. Please protect (both physical and digitally) your submissions/code. You will be held responsible even if your homework or project code is copied without your consent.
- Referring to online/Internet sources or textbook solution guides for completing homework. If you must use some code available online for your project, you must clearly cite or acknowledge the original author of the code (This may result in grading penalties; check with the instructor before using someone else's code).

Course Description

The first course on computer networking. It includes : Basics of computer networking, various protocols, socket programming etc.

Credit hours: 3

Definition of a Credit Hour

Success in this 3 credit hour course is based on the expectation that students will spend, for each unit of credit, a minimum of 45 hours over the length of the course (normally 3 hours per unit per week with 1 of the hours used for lecture) for instruction and preparation/studying or course related activities for a total of 135 hours.

Go to: <http://webs.wichita.edu/?u=academicaffairs&p=/definitionandassignmentofcredithours/> for the policy and examples for different types of courses and credit hour offerings.

Measurable Student Learning Outcomes: Undergraduate level

After passing this course, students will be able to:

- 1) Describe the functionality of networking protocols such as TCP, ICMP, IP and routing protocols.
- 2) Analyze the efficiency of networking protocols by applying concepts from probability theory and statistics.
- 3) Understand algorithms and computer programs to implement the functionality of the networking protocols.
- 4) Understand programs using state-of-the-art network and socket programming APIs.

Required Texts

Class Protocol

- Students are expected to act and communicate professionally. This is expected of anyone entering the professional workforce and is expected in this course.
- Students need to have a desktop/laptop with a good internet connection
- Lectures will be delivered in-person and attendance will be noted.
- Each assignment will be checked for plagiarism. The first offense of plagiarism will result in a ‘zero’ for the assignment/project; the second offense will result in an F for the course.
- You are responsible to check your school-registered emails at least once a day. All material and assignments will be posted on Blackboard and in addition, I may contact you about the homework, quizzes, and exams through your email. Make sure you are able to receive emails and your mailbox is not full.
- Any grades posted on Blackboard are only a copy of the official grades which are kept on a private spreadsheet. There may occasionally be a difference which if brought to my attention, I am willing to explain and/or correct.
- The COVID-19 pandemic is a complex, challenging, and fluid situation, which continues to evolve rapidly. Therefore, students consistently should review the link for the WSU COVID-19 Response for information throughout the semester. WSU will follow federal, state, and county public health recommendations and mandates in all decisions related to university operations. Our priority is the health, safety and well-being of our entire campus community. To mitigate the spread of COVID-19, students are expected to follow university guidelines for wearing their own face coverings (such as a bandana, scarf or other cloth mask) when on campus, unless walking alone outdoors or working alone in a personal office space. Students additionally are expected to follow physical or social distancing guidelines by keeping at least 6 feet from others, covering their coughs and practicing good hand hygiene.
